Safety

About the Major: a High Priority in Today’s Society

The safety program promotes safety and health in the workplace through

- education
- hazard identification, evaluation, and control
- risk management

The course work includes safety science, safety management and industrial hygiene, along with psychology, life sciences, the environment and communication. Elective courses include homeland security, EMT, natural disasters, and business.

Opportunities in the Program

Students can minor in business, psychology, environmental science and health, or environmental management. They can join our student-run chapters of ASSE (American Society of Safety Engineers), IUEMS (IU’s EMT club), and Eta Sigma Gamma (Health honorary). They have a required internship (usually paid) that takes them out into the workplace. And we have a lab that provides hands-on experience with equipment to test noise levels, air quality, and other critical indicators.

What You Can Do

Safety professionals

- reduce injuries/fatalities.
- provide safety training and leadership
- inspect for hazards
- evaluate ergonomics and environmental conditions
- design programs
- plan for emergencies
- protect corporate resources
- consult for companies or independently

Where You Can Go

- industry
- construction
- insurance
- government
- hospitals and schools
- health non-profits

What You Will Earn

Safety interns earn about $10/hr. or more. Salaries for students with BS typically start at about $40-50k, with an MS about $60-70k. For those leading loss prevention efforts for large corporations or those with consulting firms, the salary is often well into six figures.
